Government Has Spent $150,000 Since Warehouse Was Established Here.

Permanency of Supply Station on South Seventh Street Assured by Advantages in Market and Railroad Rates.

After a year's experience with the United States Indian Warehouse at No. 602 South Seventh street, the Government has found that there is to be much saved in the pur chase of supplies in the St. Louis market and, according to Colonel W. H. Blake, superintendent of the warehouse and the In dian distributing agent, the station will remain a fixture in this city.

During the twelve months that the ware-house has been established, the Government has purchased for the Indian schools and dependent tribes, merchandise from St Louis dealers to the amount of more that $150,000, and such a big customer has been greatly appreciated by local manufacturers who have wares to offer.

who have warps to offer.

Superintendent Blake says that the Government is not only able to get supplies at reasonable figures in St. Louis, but that the railroads operate to the city's advantage. There are only three other Indian warehouses in the United States. One of these is in New York, another at Chicago and the third at Omaha.

It was intended to purchase in St. Louis only such things as were needed by the agencies in the Southwest, but in the first twelve months there have been many shipments to the Northwest, in that territory supposed to be covered by Omaha. Many articles bought here have been sent to Michigan, Wisconsia and Minnesota, it being possible to procure the stuff here at a cheaper rate than was offered by dealers in any of the other cities where warehouses are located.

All goods purchased at these warehouses are incated.

All goods purchased at these warehouses are on open orders, an emergency having arisen for their use, but hids must be made before Uncle Sam will buy. St. Louis merchants are beginning to realize that the patronage is an important item and they are competing with each other for the trade. As a result, the Government has been able to find some choice bargains.

Among the articles which are bought in St. Louis are staple groceries, boots and shoes, blankets, bardware and farm implements, and books and stationery. The market has been highly satisfactory to the Government, Superintendent Elale says.

DE KOLTA MYSTIFIES COLUMBIA'S PATRONS.

The two ways of doing magic are made strikingly manifest when De Kolta is seen and appreciated at the Columbia. Any almist, with a stage full of paraphernalia, can illusionize more or less succesafully, but the man without boxes, bird cages and cabinets is the real artist.

We get them, hias, only occasionally in vaudeville. De Kolta, who is not young, walks slowly on the stage carrying an ordinary Gladstone bag.

"My wife is in there," he says, pointing to the grip. The audience is inclined to take the remark as a jest. "Oh, but she is," the magician insists as he carefully deposits the satchel.

Then he adds, "Till open it for you in a few momenta." After a series of mystify-ing tricks he motions an assistant to unlock the Gladstone.

"I find no woman, but a dice," the girl

"That is right; she is in the dice." It is placed upon a table, De Kolta makes a few passes with his hands, the dice's pro-roman steps forth.

Portland, Me., Aug. 24.-Fort Preble is onsidered the key to the whole situation. If the enemy can capture Fort Preble, or even the knoll just to the westward of it, the other forts might have to capitulate. But if the enemy captures all the other forts, Fort Preble cannot be captured except by a heavy land attack, and Fort Preble, still holding the key to the situa-Preble, still holding the key to the situation, can drive an enemy from all other forts, according to the defenders.

At sunset to-night the coast patrol system of the defending forces was put in operation for the first time since the official notification of the departure of the naval forces for Portland. The patrol consists of detachments from the various companies of the First and Second regiments, N. G. S. M., and stretches from Fort Preble to Bowery Beach, some nine or ten miles.

Without this precaution the naval forces could land small boats without number in the many small and thickly wooded coves along this vulnerable part of the coast. A heavy artillery company has been assigned to the wireless telegraph station taken yesterday by Major Welch.

INVESTIGATING COMMITTEE TO ASK AID OF CITIZENS.

Members of House of Delegates Look for Many Additional Cases Against Street-Car Companies.

The House committee for the purpose of investigating the alleged violations of ordi-nances by the street-car companies met yesterday and decided to call upon the citizens to help them obtain cases upon which nses may be issued.

A printed circular will be sent throughout the city, stating the object for which the committee was appointed, and asking the citizens to report to the committee any cases of violation of the ordinances which may chance to come to their notice.

In speaking of this decision yesterday, E. J. O'Neill, who is a member of the committee, said that they hoped in this way to not only gain the co-operation of the citizens at large, but also procure many additional cases where the law is being violated. The members of the committee are Griffin, O'Neill and Teschmacher.

Gulf and Interstate Made Trip, Arriv ing 1,040 Days Late.

REPUBLIC SPECIAL. Washington, Aug. 24.-A train that finally pulled into its destination 1,040 days late will be exhibited at the World's Fair. This train left Galveston on the Gulf and Interstate Rallroad, September 8, 1900. It was bound for Beaumont. Half of the distance had been traversed when the waters that wrought great destruction in Galveston overwhelmed the rallroad tracks and left the train standing on a small iso-lated plot of earth. All the ralls were carried away, except those on which the train stood. carried away, except those on which the train stood.

Those passengers who remained for four days on the coaches ate fruit and candy left there by the newsboy when he field. When the water abated the passengers walked into Beaumont, thirty-six miles distant.

The railroad company was unable to re-build its tracks, and the train stood where it was for nearly three years. The citizens of Gaiveston at last subscribed funds to repair the road. The rails were relaid and the engine and cars olled up and brought into Beaumout. into Beaumont.

There was quite a celebration when the belated train pulled in, 1,040 days behind schedule time.

Action Due to Emperor's Refusal to Allow Presentation of Fourteen-Day Programme.

Berlin, Aug. 24.-The refusal of the Wagner family to partake in the ceremonies at the unveiling of the Wagner monument in gress incidental thereto was due to the fact that the Emperor declined to accept the programme offered by the family through Professor Thode, son-in-law of Frau Cosima Wagner, showing the development of Wagner's genlus.

It would have required both the Royal Opera-house and the Royal Theater fourteen days to produce it. The Emperor said it was impossible to do so.

The Munich Court sided with the Wagner family, probably because of its coolneys toward the Berlin Court. Besides, it is desired to make Munich the great Wagner center. Hence, neither the Munich Court orchestra nor a Prince of the royal house of Bayaria will attend the Berlin unveiling. The Emperor has arranged to unveil the monument.

HAS 11,000 CORPORATIONS. Increase in Illinois Last Year Was 2.000

REPUBLIC SPECIAL

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 24.-Secretary of State Rose began to mail out to-day certified lists of active corporations in the State of Illinois. The compilation shows about 11.000 corporations existing in Illinois, an ncrease of 2,000 in the last year. The numher of corporations formed in the last year has reached nearly 4,000, but 1,600 that were living a year ago have been since dis-solved.

Some delay has been experienced in the work, as it was desired to incorporate in it the decision of the Supreme Court on the constitutionality of the act providing for annual reports by corporations to the Secretary of State. As that question will not be passed upon until the October term of court, however, it was finally decided to issue the volume without waiting for a legal decision of the question.

The blouse has for its foundation a glovefitted featherboned lining that closes in the center back, and is faced with squares of drawn work to form a yoke back and front. The full fronts are tucked and applied to outline the yoke. The tucks are stitched down part way, the fullness provided by the tucks forming a smart blouse over the belt. The backs are tucked to correspond with the fronts, but are stitched down from yoke to belt, tapering stylishly at the waist. The closing is made invisibly beneath the tucks. A plain linen collar is trimmed with bands of silk.

Inside seams fit the one-piece bishop sleeves closely to the upper arm. They are very wide at the lower edge, where the fullness is gathered and arranged on cuffs of unique shaping. The bands of silk are applied to simulate caps, but may be omitted. Waists in this style are made of taffeta, satin, albatross, veiling in soft silk and wool fabrics, with lace, applique, allover embroidery or inserted tucking for trimming.

To make the waist in the medium size will require two yards of material forty-four inches wide. The pattern, No. 9022—Train skirts still reign supreme in the fashlon word; in fact, no modiste would think of making a dressy gown without a train. There are, however, many women who will not wear long skirts in the street and scriously object to rainy-day lengths. For this reason laders tailors are making a number of costumes with skirts that are round, just escaping the ground.

Such a skirt is shown here, developed in white brilliantine, unlined and trimmed with heavy lace my proportioned gores, fitted smoothly around the waist and hips. It closes invisibly at the back in habit effect.
